The Demand

Tomorrow, name honestly which type of operator you are — corporate refugee, passion-first amateur, career manager, or any of the others — and admit that every type arrives at the same Doom Loop if left unchecked. Your type isn't the problem. What you do about its blind spot is.

The Work

Which type of operator best describes you right now?

☐ The corporate refugee — had strategic depth, stopped using it

☐ The passion-first amateur — heart, no business framework

☐ The kitchen manager-turned-owner — world-class behind the line, no training on the business side

☐ The family legacy operator — inherited it, running on obligation

☐ Other:

The specific blind spot this type carries that you recognize in yourself:

Every type arrives at the same Doom Loop if left unchecked. What is your version of it doing right now?
