The Demand

Name which condition you are currently in: Forest For The Trees — lost in the particulars, missing the pattern. Or Trees For The Forest — reading the structure, missing the signal in the instance. Or both. Then name one position change you will make this week — one moment where you physically step outside your current operating angle and look at the business from the view you are not currently holding.

The Work

Which condition are you in right now — and what evidence tells you that:
Have you been drawn into the technical work by the substrate instead of staying above it — where specifically:
Are you the only one who can play too many instruments in this operation — which ones and why:
The position change — what view are you not currently holding, and when this week will you take it:
What do you expect to see from that position that you cannot see from inside the machine:
